Suspension Policy

The Alaska State Court Law Library is available for legal research purposes only. While use of the library is a privilege open to all users there are certain rules, summarized as General Library Policies, which are enforced to maintain an environment conducive to the research needs of all of our patrons. Violation of these policies may lead to suspension of library privileges. Persistent infractions of the General Library Policies may lead to permanent suspension of library privileges.

A schedule of suspension for persistent violations is as follows: A patron may be subjected to three one-week suspensions, followed by a one-month suspension. Thereafter, any additional incident in violation of the law library rules may lead to a permanent suspension of library privileges. Particularly egregious violations can lead to immediate permanent suspension.
